Build-Out and Construction Team

By Carolyn Miller, National Franchise Institute

1. Assembling a strong _____ is an important part of building new locations.
2. _____ is THE most important criterion to consider when qualifying the right people to work on your project.
3. Franchisors often have a list of prequalified _____ and _____ that they will recommend to you.
4. As a franchisee, you should talk to _____ about who they hired and how their experience went.
5. The _____ that you hire will oversee the general contractor and will also handle complicated or time-consuming tasks to keep your project on schedule.

After more than three decades in franchising with brands such as McDonald's, Chipotle and Red Robin, Carolyn Miller founded the National Franchise Institute. This educational platform helps entrepreneurs open physical locations and teaches them how to succeed and grow. She's also COO for New Early Orthodontics (NEO).
